

Dear Jessica,

We're all about feeling positive and testing negative!

We have seen some green shoots for the travel industry with the limited resumption of international travel between Australia and New Zealand. This coupled with Hong Kong and Singapore's in-principle agreement to establish a bilateral Air Travel Bubble is an encouraging indication of a slow but achievable recovery for the travel industry in the Asia-Pacific region.

In keeping with that uplifting news this month we're sharing an exciting new collaboration with Monocle magazine, talking high tea with industry aficionado, Michelle McRae and baking a Hong Kong classic, egg tarts.

Stay safe,
The HKTB Team

Bright lights, fit city.

We have collaborated with world renowned global affairs magazine, Monocle to show off the best of Hong Kong's great outdoors and pioneering wellness programmes.

Hong Kong is known the world over for its futuristic city centre but go beyond the skyscrapers and neon lights, and you'll discover a bounty of natural delights that cater to everyone, whether they're seeking musical healing or rigorous exercise...

Dan tat (egg tarts)

The beloved Hong Kong egg tart is a yum cha staple and the perfect ode to the city's East meets West culture. This local take on both the English custard tart and Portuguese pastel de nata is a firm favourite and confident contender to be crowned Hong Kong's best dessert. Taken from SBS Food.
